INDIVIDUALS RE-ENTERING THE COMMUNITY FROM JAIL
DCDHS – ACS DIVISION

The Dane County Department of Human Services is the recipient of grant funding from the Department of Justice to reach out to Dane County Jail inmates who are dependent on heroin and other opiates in order to provide treatment upon their release from jail. With this funding Journey has met with identified jail inmates, conducted intakes, and set initial treatment appointments for the day of release from jail, a time where many are at risk to return to use of opiates and in some cases overdose. Treatment consists of individual and group psychotherapy and the administration of Vivitrol, an injectable medication that mutes the craving for heroin and other opiates for up to one month per injection. Underspending of $34,254 in the Drug Court Reorganization part of the Department’s 2014 budget will be used to purchase an estimated 35 additional monthly doses of Vivitrol, so use of this important treatment component can be expanded. Vivitrol has helped a population that is difficult to treat stay engaged in therapeutic interventions which allows more time for recovery principles to take hold. Of those who receive their first injection, 80% continue to follow through on their treatment plans.
