June Director's Report

Bookmobile Construction

We have almost finalized the wrap with Angela Richardson and are excited about the exterior of the new Bookmobile!

LDV has had a delay in procuring the chassis; however, this is not expected to cause major delays in getting the new vehicle this fall.

Out and About

I visited Eagle Heights on June 8 where I did a story time, craft, registered people for library cards and checked out a variety of children's materials.

Todd Cox had great reception at the Dane County Breakfast on the Farm on June 11. Various libraries sent us agriculture, farming and dairy books that were checked out in abundance!

This summer we have included Owl Creek as a trial stop on Thursdays from 3-3:30pm. This has proved to be popular with the neighborhood! We think this will easily become a regular stop in the fall, as the school bus drops kids off just after 3pm. Pinney Branch library staff have been at Owl Creek to help the Bookmobile drivers manage the volume.

Summer Reading Program

The summer has exploded for us on the Bookmobile! Over 200 kids have registered and have stars on the ceiling of the bus. Eight adults have participated in the adult program thus far. Crafts have been popular and well-attended at just about every stop!

SCLS News

The ILS and Technology Committees will hold a joint meeting on July 13. We will discuss the budget in anticipation of the July 21 All Directors' Meeting where SCLS members will approve the budget.

Public Library System Redesign

I attended an all-day planning day with my Consulting Team on June 22. All committees and their leaders were present for this meeting that required us to establish our desired service outcomes and lay out a schedule to formulate a model by mid-September. This is proving to be challenging work; however, we all are finding it rewarding.
