E. Reports to Committee

Lyman reported funding has been identified to support communities in updating or developing ADA transition plans. The Public Right of Way Accessibility Guidelines first proposed in 2011 are expected to be adopted in December. Lyman reported the Coordinating Council on Access and Mobility (CCAM), which includes representatives from many federal agencies, is working to address accessibility issues and resolve the segregation of transportation funding streams that causes many inefficiencies by 2026. He offered to share more about CCAM during a future meeting.
